Get HomeFill and Breathe in the Freedom

Yes, you can.®

Many medical professionals, including physicians, encourage their patients on oxygen therapy to exercise and remain active. The NOTT Study (Nocturnal Oxygen Therapy Trial)¹ as well as the 2nd through the 5th Consensus Conference²⁻⁵ on Home Oxygen Therapy identify the need for portable oxygen to enhance a patient's quality of life as well as extend it. The Invacare® HomeFill® Oxygen System gives ambulatory oxygen patients control of their lives, while enhancing their ability to remain active.

"Now I don't have to depend on anyone to get my oxygen out to me. It is always right there ready for me. It gives you a wonderful feeling to know that you are in control. I have what I want, when I need it."

— Frances Burt,
HomeFill user

"I don't see how people survived without the HomeFill before. If you've got to have a system, as far as I am concerned, this system is it. It is so easy to use, you can take it and fill your own tank. You don't have to worry about any truck any bottles, and you don't have to worry about being without oxygen."

— Dennis Whitney,
HomeFill user

I love to play golf, but I couldn't play. Now that I have the HomeFill system, it's a breeze. I can last pretty well with it, so I get to play my 18 holes now. I feel a lot of relief that I'm not tied down. I don't have to depend on an oxygen delivery. I can deliver it myself – just by plugging it onto the machine."

— Bruce Johnson,
HomeFill user

Medicare and most insurance plans may cover HomeFill.

Medicare and most insurance companies may cover the cost of HomeFill if you qualify for portable oxygen. Please contact your insurance provider for reimbursement verification.
